

Why we're upset with the developers

Introduction:

The purpose of this document is to provide context, clarification and deeper explanation for why some people, including but not limited to Sylvanor/Dingo Ananas and far more recently myself (Rothary), are upset with the Brickadia developer team. I'm not sure if it's even worth writing this document, because the developers have demonstrated unwillingness to honour their past promises of addressing and fixing issues within the community, but I'm writing it anyway even if just to help spread the word and set the record straight from our perspective.

As to why I speak on Dingo's behalf at several parts in this document, this is Dingo's wish as he's not confident enough with his fluency in English to trust himself in converting his thoughts into English sentences, which in the past has already led to many misunderstandings and has thus requested I speak on his behalf when writing about this. I've known Dingo for over a decade and can easily interpret his thoughts and feelings and express them accurately on his behalf with his full approval.

As to why we really even care about all this, instead of just leaving it be? We think the game is amazing and will be even more amazing as time goes on. We do not want the game to fail. We do not want the game to suffer from bad reputation at release, especially given how it's already suffering enough from the past pedo controversies. We're bringing attention to these issues because we know they will affect the game's reputation even more should it become public knowledge that this is how the developer team continues to handle things, showing they haven't learned much from their past controversies. We do not support sweeping things under the rug – transparency is always better than being caught for hiding things (something people continue to remember the developers for regarding the pedo allegations against former developers, citing the delay in the developers taking action from the moment they learned about it). Knowing the developers, they're probably surprised to hear about there being issues to begin with, or alternatively attack it as baseless slander by a group of people who blindly hate them for no reason (as they did by their statement further below). This kind of opaque "nuh uh" type approach of denying issues (which they've openly acknowledged in the past until inexplicably changing their stance soon after) is in itself a major contributor to the developers' increasingly deteriorating reputation, and we hope the developers would eventually learn to see perspectives other than their own, like they once did in late 2021 for a brief moment, and actually for once learn from their past mistakes.

And finally, why does Dingo Ananas even matter so much, why do we act so entitled about all this? Dingo Ananas, formerly (and still presently colloquially) known as Sylvanor, could be described as a sort of godfather of Brickadia the game. The game began as a Blockland save viewer for Unreal Engine to see what Dingo's Blockland cities would look like in a more capable engine. Dingo has been present in the project since its very inception as its oldest non-dev user and has had significant influence on the game's development as an advisor and a VIP community member, with the developers either consulting him or carefully listening to his wishes and concerns regarding new features and game mechanics. When the game still used Blockland assets prior to alpha 3, the brick selection was that of Dingo's Blockland server. The selector was added to the game for alpha 4 (as opposed to much later in alpha 5 as the original stated plan was) primarily so Dingo would agree to move over from Blockland to Brickadia to continue building his city in the new game instead. Dingo was also one of the first people to be added to the original QA team, the developers stating they didn't add him sooner simply because they thought they already did, claiming Dingo was supposed to be the very first person to be added. In short, Dingo used to be the person in the community. At this point the developers prefer sticking to smearing his name, as explained further in this document.

Latest development: Toriel & Bones are cool :)

Tldr;

Toriel approached Bone For to apologise for everything. Mistakes were admitted and apologies mutually exchanged and the two have figuratively shaken hands. Any criticisms we've had towards Toriel have hereby been largely resolved.

What happened

Toriel approached Bone For to offer her sincere apologies for her past behaviour and actions. She accepted full responsibility for everything we've criticised her for and apologised for everything, making no excuses. Likewise Bone apologised for anything he may have done that could have hurt Toriel.

Toriel states that she's not aware of Bone having ever acted transphobic and states that Bone's comments regarding the change in her behaviour in the past were fair. According to Toriel, anyone claiming Bone's comments were transphobic against her is misrepresenting the situation – possibly the result of a community wide game of broken telephone.

I'd like to also make it clear that Bone felt her apology was sincere and genuine, so let there be no doubt over that. I suggest everyone view Toriel as a positively changed person, who has accepted responsibility for her past.

Are there any remaining issues around her?

As a result of Toriel accepting responsibility and apologising for virtually everything we've criticised her for in this document, I've felt obligated to remove the chapter about her as the bulk of the issues raised in it are no longer valid. Any remaining issues are not her fault or responsibility (or are personal issues not worth being brought up here).

One such issue that could be argued to remain is the apparent nepotism of her holding a position as a moderator, given that the conflict of interest previously described in the old Toriel chapter (romantic relationship with a developer) remains in place and she was indeed added as a moderator back when the issues she apologised for were still very much there. Personally I would however argue that Toriel has shown great development and maturity through her apology, demonstrating her willingness to recognize her flaws. As was mentioned in the old chapter, personally I've never had bad experiences with her actions as a moderator and she has resolved situations I've been involved in in a fair manner. One could also argue the conflict of interest is unlikely to influence moderation, given it's between a moderator and a developer, who both represent the same team. Of course the PR side of the apparent nepotism and the past circumstances under which she was granted the position will still remain, but at this point I'd be willing to look past that as a non-issue.

Chat with Aware (annex 4 and 5 at Orion's)

This chapter is a recent addition to the document and uses the other chapters as context

Tl;dr

Aware joined Dingo's server and read the essay (except for this chapter, obviously). His response to it was stating that all complaints raised about the developers in it are in fact complaints about him, because he's the one who advocated all those things, convincing the developers to go through with them all. In a nutshell you could basically say that at least from our perspective Aware admits to having manipulated the developers for years, causing the entire strife between them and Dingo in the first place.

Things Aware said

1. Aware states that the things we complain about in this document are in fact complaints about him, because he advocated for almost every complaint in it, stating that "most of the things you complain about are caused by me directly"
2. He advocated for banning Facechild, because "he joked about sea being a pedo and some people from his server took it seriously and ended up sending sea death threats"
3. Aware was the first to advocate for adding Toriel back as a full mod after she had been kicked out, because he felt (and still does) "the reason for removal was unfairly represented"
4. He defends Toriel by stating that he doesn't like Bones For "especially after he went around saying how much better toriel was before she was trans" and therefore "i dunno why you expect toriel to give bones an apology for that"

5. Regarding SeaChameleon he states that "the sea chameleon not getting banned part was mostly because i thought they would actually listen to conf but they just got worse"
6. He states that "i mean moderators also spied this server's chat lol", referring to Dingo's in-game server chat being integrated to Dingo's Discord, at the time publicly accessible, stating how "it helped me convince everyone that [Dingo] was a 2 faced liar, and really a terrible person", referring to how how Dingo would openly criticise the developers on his own server

Once again just as with the developers' "public statement" further down on this document, this kind of speaks for itself and I wouldn't really need to even address most of this. I will point out though, that Bones' comments about Toriel aren't directed at her being trans, but at her changed behaviour after she went trans. I am quite confident of this because Bones has talked to me about this personally in detail (when discussing his problems about Toriel, why he left Brickadia and why he does not plan to return) and nothing he has described has been about the fact that she's trans, but strictly about her changed behaviour. Bones has had no problems with any of his other trans friends and has (in my experience, having frequented his server) only ever been supportive of them and the trans community together with Toriel. (This has now been confirmed by Toriel personally in her apology to Bone For)

Toriel has also never brought up any of this in relation to the situation between her and Bones in her messages to Bones or to me, explaining her side of the story, so I can only conclude what Aware bases his entire stance on regarding this case, is not even related to the case in question. Neither has anyone ever demanded Toriel apologise for Bones' comments about her, which Aware seems to imply for some reason, seemingly having a very skewed and prejudiced view of the entire situation. (This too has now been confirmed by Toriel personally in her apology to Bone For)

Overall Aware seems to admit to having influenced the developers against Dingo using misleading info for years, while also zealously defending Toriel due to his distaste towards Bones and due to Facechild's mistakes (both of which are unrelated to the situation between Bones and Toriel and why we wanted her removed as a moderator), largely causing the entire strife in the first place. Dingo has over the years in the past talked to me about how he feels like the developers are deliberately avoiding him, which is mostly how the entire strife between him and the developers began in the first place. I thought this was just Dingo jumping to conclusions, but Aware more or less confirmed that he specifically put effort into convincing the developers to distance themselves from Dingo due to his criticisms of them on his server. We find it rather alarming that a moderator preferred to sow discord and distrust that continues to affect the Brickadia team and their reputation to this day years later (and has caused most of what is described in this document), rather than for example confronting Dingo about the criticisms he has to try and address them, or forwarding the criticisms to the developers for the purpose of letting them know about issues the community sees so the developers could then address them, or alternatively, provide explanations if the said criticism is not valid.

Rothary's chat with Sixmorphugus and its outcome (Annex 1 and 3)

I contacted my friend and Brickadia developer Sixmorphugus in an attempt to fix the sour relationship between my other friend Dingo Ananas and the Brickadia developer team, for which I feel both parties are more or less equally responsible. Instead of agreeing to have a fair and constructive one-to-one discussion with Dingo about their misunderstandings and mutual contributions to the sour relationship, they chose to write a smear piece about Dingo, in which they completely acquit themselves of any fault and blame everything on Dingo, while making accusations based on hearsay or lacking context they seemingly never bothered to verify.

This resulted in me losing any and all respect and trust I ever had towards the developers, despite only a day prior having been one of the developers most loyal defenders, looking forward to working with them in QA once again. I hope for (but for aforementioned reasons I am not expecting) an apology from the developer team. I've never felt as deeply disrespected as I did when they took my sincere attempt at fixing the relationship and used it to destroy it beyond repair, leaving nothing left for me to defend. I've never had the displeasure to interact with a developer team more vile than this one and I feel deeply hurt and disappointed by them. Prior to this I've only ever been stubbornly defending the developers – now I am unable to do so due to their "public statement" contradicting nearly everything I've ever said about them in their defence, proving it all wrong.

The events:

The most recent development, which pushed me from stubbornly defending the developers against Dingo's criticism all the way to feeling hurt and upset with the developers myself, came after a chat I had with Sixmorphugus on Discord, and what followed that. Me and Six go way back into Blockland and I would say we're friends (or at least were), Six also being probably the most approachable developer in the team.

Last April (2023) Six had contacted me on Discord to ask if I was still interested in joining the Quality Assurance team and I explained that yes, I am. I had been one of the most active testers in the old QA team before it was disbanded in order to be reformed in a more professional manner. Given my contributions to the game, not limited to work in QA, I had expected to be one of the first people to be invited to the new QA, which to my surprise ended up not being the case as I had not been invited at all. I had expressed my confusion about this to Six a while earlier, who explained he's not actually sure why I hadn't been invited, but assured that I was on the list of people to be added and that I shouldn't feel bad for not having been included in the first batch of people. I couldn't help feeling upset about it though, given how some other people who had contributed significantly less to the game did make it into the first batch of new testers, which to me felt like all my efforts had gone entirely unappreciated (a "why were they considered a higher priority over myself despite all my efforts? Why couldn't they give me even the bare minimum of simply reinviting me into QA as a thanks for everything I've done?" type of feeling).

The developers of course are free to add whoever they want and I cannot fault the devs for this. What upset me a bit more though, was when I brought this up to Six once again after he asked if I was still interested in joining QA. This time Six explained that the reason I hadn't been invited originally was because "we thought you and Sylvanor hated our guts", though pointing out that they had since then learned through our past conversations that they thought wrong and that I had in fact specifically been defending the developers against Dingo's criticism of them and that they're sorry for thinking otherwise. The reason it upset me though, was that this was the first time after so many months that I heard this being the reason I hadn't been invited to QA, as well as the fact that the developers had made such a decision based on their own false assumptions about myself, without ever even trying to consult me to verify if their assumptions about me were even true. I frankly do not know why the developers thought I hated them either. Six did apologise to me on behalf of the developer team, so I cannot really hold it against the developers. It having happened in the first place did come off as extremely unprofessional (affecting my view of the entire team), but in this case they recognized their mistake and apologised for it, so water under the bridge, even if it left a lasting, rather negative impression of how the developer team operates.

The next day I contacted Six again, because him having mentioned myself and Dingo (Sylvanor) hating their guts reminded me of the sour relationship between them and Dingo, for which I've always been very sorry (hence me defending the developers against Dingo's criticism of them). This prompted me to decide to try to fix (or at least improve) the relationship between the developers and Dingo. I felt that I had a good, more or less objective perspective of the overall situation, having known Dingo for long enough to recognize all his faults, also having been around for the things that prompted Dingo to grow upset with the developers. Basically I believe I can quite confidently say the whole mess is the fault of both sides, resulting in a sort of self feeding cycle of one side getting upset with the other due to something they did, who then in turn got upset with the other side for being upset about it, both sides only growing more and more upset with each other due to both sides being upset with each other.

In my chat with Six I tried to express the fact that both sides have contributed to the issue, basically trying to get the developers to recognise how they too have contributed to it all, rather than Dingo just hating them for no reason whatsoever. My hope was to have both sides admit their faults to each other and to clear any misunderstandings (a notable chunk of the whole mess is purely the result of misunderstandings in both directions). Six said that the dev team might be willing to have a talk with Dingo, much to my delight. I let Dingo know (and had a similar chat with him) and Dingo himself stated that he feels he understands the developers' perspective better now and that he fully admits his faults. I was hopeful things could improve at least slightly.

In the end, it was Dingo who had to approach the developers to have the chat, the developers instructing Dingo to do it via BrickBot (modmail). Both me and Dingo thought that was rather strange and counterproductive, given that talking via BrickBot meant that Dingo would be talking to the entire Brickadia team, moderators included, rather than only the developers. In addition Dingo wouldn't have any way of knowing who he was talking to, since the entire Brickadia team would be talking through the mouth of BrickBot – Dingo couldn't possibly know if he was even talking to a developer or just a moderator. I stress at this point that my chat with Six had been specifically and exclusively about addressing the sour relationship between Dingo and the developers personally – moderators are not part of the issue at hand. Dingo brought up these concerns to BrickBot and got the following snarky and rather passive aggressive message in response:

"The moderation team is part of the brickadia project, they are not outsiders. If you want to talk to the developers, you will talk to the moderators too. As a clarification, when Sixmorphugus sent you to modmail it was because the intent was to have you speak with the entire team."

I've no idea why Six would intend to have Dingo talk with the entire team, when the issue I had brought up to him and hoped to resolve did not concern the entire team. Naturally this essentially meant that there was no way Dingo could possibly agree to discuss this very personal matter, since he wasn't allowed even the basic courtesy of knowing who he's talking to. BrickBot insisting Dingo either talk to the entire Brickadia team or not talk at all demonstrated that the team would rather give Dingo a passive aggressive ultimatum than agree to have a fair and sincere discussion that actually has a chance of fixing things. As to why the developers were unwilling to budge from this for the sake of being able to talk at least some things out, preferring to instead double down on making themselves the sole problem standing in the way of fixing things, we've absolutely no idea. The feeling we had was the equivalent of going to marriage counselling and having all your neighbours present in the room, insisting you either share everything with them all or go home without counselling. Given all this, the discussion was essentially over before it even began.

This upset me a great deal, as I felt like my genuine and sincere attempt of approaching the developers to fix a sour relationship between them and a friend had been doused in gasoline and lit on fire by the developers by refusing to even give

Dingo an even ground to talk from. Feeling upset, I vented about this on a friend's server in Brickadia, where the said friend offered to bring up my frustrations to the developers about how I felt they had betrayed my trust and shut Dingo out, instead of actually agreeing to talk things out. Maybe he could make them understand our perspective and how unbelievably unfair they had been. I explained everything here so far and my friend forwarded it onto Six, who responded to him with "rothary told you his version". I've genuinely no idea what "my version" is even supposed to mean in this case, as it is a fact that the developers refused to act fair towards Dingo by hiding behind BrickBot's anonymity and giving Dingo an ultimatum in a situation where we needed them to be fair and transparent to talk things out as peers, which is "my version". Soon after this the developers posted a "public statement" about the whole deal for their QA team (the statement having been shared with me, since it concerns Dingo, and more importantly my aforementioned efforts). Keep in mind that things posted on QA are meant to be NDA protected and thus neither I nor Dingo was supposed to even see or be able to address the statement, which once again gives a rather alarming image of the developer team The statement itself is as follows:

We've given Dingo chances time and time again but he has demonstrated that he isn't fit for QA after talking offensively about specific developers and moderators in private Brickadia servers, intentionally deadnaming and insulting trans members of the community, and being part of the conversations spreading ill-will about the development and moderation teams. He continues to this day to utilize his server's name and description to vaguely insult, harass, and poke fun of certain moderators as well as community members. We have deliberately allowed him to do, despite his claims that we "unfairly moderate" his group. We've given him plenty.

We allowed him one more time to contact us privately about the situation so we could come to a mutual agreement and maybe allow him back into the team. He immediately demonstrated that he is not willing to come to an agreement by accusing us of 'allowing unrelated parties to join the conversation' which is strange considering the entire purpose of that was so he could make amends with the whole team. Dingo decided to leave the community on his own accord upon hearing this, we have not instructed him to do so.

Simply put: Dingo is not QA material. We do not have faith that he will obey the NDA properly, given his utter refusal to respect the entire Brickadia team and repeated attempts to slander their reputation as well as the community. This is the only public statement we will be making about this situation, if only to set the story straight as it seems to be getting spun quite hard without us addressing this.

To this Sixmorphugus added:

I will add; It took me a lot of convincing to get the rest of the team to entertain talking to dingo. When I got things to this point, which took a few days of talking to people and about the situation in general, dingo literally cocked it up immediately.

What this statement shows in a nutshell, is that the developers would rather write a smear piece about a prominent community member, declaring everything as being exclusively the said community member's fault and none of the devs', than to honour a request by a friend to fix a sour relationship between them and the said community member by talking things out and clearing any misunderstandings. I've never in my entire life felt as disrespected as I did after reading this statement, including Six's addition on how Dingo "literally cocked it up immediately". How the developers can even begin to view especially the latter as being Dingo's fault I genuinely cannot comprehend and is beyond detached from reality. The entire statement essentially reads as "we only approached the whole to-be-had discussion with Dingo as a job interview for QA and had absolutely zero intention of having the constructive mutual discussion that was actually expected from us". The statement shows the developers missed the entire point of my whole chat with Six, be it intentionally or not, and never had even the slightest intention of acting transparent and admitting any of their own faults, instead expecting Dingo alone to apologise for absolutely everything even the developers held responsibility for. The developers essentially admit that had Dingo agreed to have the discussion despite the unfair conditions, it was never going to be the discussion we thought the developers had offered, therefore it wasn't even Dingo's refusal to talk that ended it. It was the developers, who never even planned to have that conversation in the first place.

And there you have it, me approaching the developers in an attempt to fix a sour relationship I've felt sorry for for years resulted in the developers single-handedly destroying every single argument I've ever given in their defence against Dingo's criticisms, leaving nothing left for me to defend. At this point I am sorry to say the sour relationship is exclusively on the developers and there's nothing more we can do about it, given the developers' unwillingness to act fair and transparent. They were given the opportunity to talk things out with Dingo, who was ready to admit and discuss his faults, and they chose to burn it all down and attack Dingo instead. I've never felt as betrayed in my life and I've lost all respect and trust I ever had in the developers as a result. I'm genuinely confused why the developers chose to act this way, why they didn't give Dingo a fair position to talk from, why they wrote the statement (why was it meant exclusively for QA eyes?) or how the developers could ever expect me to trust them again after this. For all I know the developers might've already written a similar smear piece about myself for spreading the word about this situation. Their statement on Dingo already shows they'd rather join in on slander based on hearsay or lacking context, than address any real issues in the community.

Given the developers' statement, I felt compelled to write this document "if only to set the story straight as it seems to be getting spun quite hard without us addressing this".

Accusations presented in the statement:

The developers begin the statement by claiming they've given Dingo "chances time and time again". I must admit I'm not sure what these "chances" they're referring to are supposed to have been, how they were given to Dingo or what was Dingo expected to do with them. One could say the developers instead have been given chances time and time again, as is discussed in this whole document.

The developers continue to state that Dingo is not fit for QA. I don't know how QA is related to the situation, since at no point in my chat with Six did I bring up the idea of Dingo joining QA. The developers however argue the issue is his behaviour, which includes "talking offensively about specific developers and moderators in private Brickadia servers, intentionally deadnaming and insulting trans members of the community, and being part of the conversations spreading ill-will about the development and moderation teams".

Funny enough the developers seem to be doing exactly some of those things to Dingo through the very statement they mention them in. Dingo however does have a tendency to be very harsh with his words (one of his flaws he admits), so his comments about the developers could indeed be described as offensive. Dingo however does not criticise people for the fun of it and instead feels he is more than justified to do so due to how he has been treated (the developers' contributions to this mess). Sometimes it has been purely due to misunderstandings, mutual or otherwise, which is exactly what I had hoped the developers would have discussed with Dingo, so both sides could've offered each other explanations and clear any such misunderstandings. Too bad the developers were unwilling to clear any misunderstandings.

As for deadnaming, I'm aware of two cases that could be referring to, Eluna or Toriel. Eluna is the more legitimate case of the text for things like this). Back when Eluna was known as Alleria, she joined Dingo's server and proceeded to attack him for his server name saying "#JusticeForFacechild", Eluna claiming Dingo is defending lies, bigotry and injustice by siding with Facechild two, but also has some nuance to it (not that the devs have bothered to verify any cond on the Facechild vs SeaChameleon drama. Eluna also attacked Dingo for being "homophobic" for having criticised (rather harshly, to be fair) his local gay community (of which Dingo himself is part of), based on his own bad first hand experiences in it. For these reasons Eluna demanded Dingo remove her name from the server donors list, claiming Dingo is deadnaming her by having the list still feature her old username "Sials".

Dingo was unwilling to grant the request due to Eluna's hostility towards him, and instead changed the name on the list to "Sials/Alleria" to reflect her current name (again, Eluna was called Alleria at the time), continuing to keep it as that for several months to essentially annoy Eluna due to her accusations and hostile disrespectful behaviour (this type of pettiness is another one of Dingo's flaws he admits). I eventually managed to convince Dingo to remove her name from the list as requested, after Eluna contacted me in a very respectful manner to point out he still had her (old) names displayed on the list. Overall in this situation I believe Dingo and Eluna were both at fault and it is very unfair of the developers to omit that fact (or alternatively not having bothered to even find out by actually looking into this) in their statement, if it indeed refers to this case.

If the deadnaming in turn refers to Toriel (which I'd be surprised about, but it's the only other potential case I can think of, so worth mentioning just in case), then it is beyond unfair. I myself am guilty of having "deadnamed" her by referring to her by her previous username Demi when discussing past events with people who only know her by the name she used back then, calling her Demi. We are used to referring to everyone by their old more familiar usernames (if there is one), which is why I'm known as ANT, Dingo is known as Sylvanor and Bone For is known as bones4, those names being more commonly used than our actual present usernames. Using her old name for the sake of clarity in discussions about past events is hardly worthy of being labelled as "deadnaming", especially when we aren't intentionally using her old name in her presence. At this point due to enough people being aware of Toriel being the past Demi, we stick to Toriel anyway. If the deadnaming is referring to neither of these cases (Eluna or Toriel), then I cannot judge whether it is a fair accusation or not.

As for the developers claim of Dingo spreading slander and ill-will about the developers, I'd make the claim that the developers don't seem to have a clue about the difference between slander and criticism, or how widespread the said criticism about the developers actually is, which is something we've previously pointed out to the developer team via Zeblote, who fully acknowledged the fact. Much of the "slander" and "ill-will" is Dingo expressing dissatisfaction on how the developers have handled some situations, especially PR wise – something recognised by much of the community, or how the development is done or progressing. Dingo is merely the only prominent user who's vocal about it in public (as opposed to only bringing it up in in-game chat or private discord servers), which then probably comes off as Dingo being the one and only person who has less glamorous things to say about the game and its developers, with anyone else with similar views merely being the product of Dingo spreading slander.

The thing is that very little of what Dingo criticises the developers about is unique to his server or our group of friends. Most of it is widespread public opinion resulting from the developers' own actions (or lack of them) – one simply cannot discuss such things outside private servers due to the Brickadia discord acting as an echochamber, where criticism is easily met with hostility and quickly shut down by the vigilance of the users responding to it (as we've previously pointed out to the developers, who've once again acknowledged and verified this themselves), thus further contributing to the criticism towards the community itself in discussions outside the official discord. Moderator issues in turn cannot be brought up via modmail if the very issue is people not being able to trust the mod team.

Why was the relationship sour in the first place?

Will try to write this in full later if I can bother (probably can't), but the main reasons are:

- misunderstandings (mutual – on Dingo for always assuming the worst, on developers for practically never communicating about their actions to actually clear any potential misunderstandings and avoiding harmful speculations)
- poor communication (mostly on the developers)
- face vs sea drama (it having been allowed to happen at all + weak handling of the aftermath + Bones for leaving the game due to Toriel's behaviour)
- Toriel (developers rewarding her with a position of trust, later going back on their own word without a clear explanation, leading to a public image of embracing nepotism)
- frustrations on perceived unprofessional or slow development (more or less mutual issue, but probably more on Dingo for being upset about it despite often rational explanations the developers can't always help)
- frustrations on seemingly irrational or unprofessional actions taken by the developers (such as poor communication and actions with very obvious negative PR impact, such as Toriel as a moderator or the developers writing their statement about Dingo)
- lack of recognition for Dingo's contributions (poor communication, feeling of being ignored – mutual issue)
- self feeding cycle ("he hates us/they hate me, so fuck him/them" – very mutual issue and the main thing I wanted to bring attention to by my chat with Six)

These are some of the things I had hoped the developers would have agreed to discuss and clear any misunderstandings together with Dingo, who had already agreed to do just that. I am very sorry the developers were unwilling to give Dingo the benefit of the doubt and approach him on fair ground as a peer, thus throwing away their one last chance to clear any potential misunderstandings, instead leaving them to continue to impact their reputation to this day, especially with how they handled this very situation by demonstrating a complete unwillingness to actually talk things out fairly. Back when we brought a lot of these issues to the developers attention, the developers fully acknowledging them, Sixmorphugus described it as

"this really seems like a reputation disaster waiting to happen". I am sorry to say he wasn't wrong and the developers have since only doubled down on digging themselves deeper instead of actually addressing issues.

The Facechild vs SeaChameleon drama

The Facechild vs SeaChameleon drama is more or less the catalyst for all the big issues we have with the developers. The drama itself is a closed case and the developers have openly admitted it to have been a "major failure on moderation" and have expressed regret on how it ended and especially how it happened in the first place. This chapter's purpose is to simply provide the context for what the drama actually was. One could however argue that the entire situation this document is about is more or less a repetition of this drama and has already had very similar effects of users leaving and the developers losing reputation.

The events

The Facechild vs SeaChameleon drama was about SeaChameleon & co, including Toriel (not a moderator at the time) and to a lesser extend moo (formerly Confidentbottle) and APX, attacking Facechild for amongst other reasons his shitposty behaviour and past criticism of furies, escalating into SeaChameleon spreading false slander about Facechild being a transphobe, rallying some of the Brickadia trans community against Facechild, attacking him as a bigot due to Sea's lies. Facechild would end up banned for a couple weeks at one point largely thanks to Sea's accusations, who proceeded to further attack Face immediately upon his return. This time Facechild contacted Sixmorphugus about Sea attacking him, Six agreeing that it's about time to get rid of Sea, especially since he's actively at it at the moment. Six did however end with "I'll consult confi", referring to the fellow developer Confidentbottle, today known as moo. The outcome was not a ban but a 10 minute mute, which then led us to believe moo was protecting Sea from fair moderation, preventing a ban. In the end SeaChameleon got away with almost anything, including the targeted slander, due to a conflict of interest resulting from moo Toriel being in a romantic relationship with SeaChameleon back then. The resulting unfair and biased moderation targeting Face but not Sea has since then been confirmed by moderators and less directly by the developers themselves.

In the end the outcome was Facechild and his close friend Bone For (Bones4) deciding to permanently leave Brickadia, Bone For permanently shutting down his Titanic project he was working on with (among others) APX and Toriel, wanting nothing to do with Brickadia. SeaChameleon in turn ended up permanently muted a month later for unrelated reasons. Toriel and moo have since then stated that SeaChameleon had manipulated them into acting the way they did, and have since then completely cut ties to SeaChameleon. APX has likewise stated having been manipulated against Facechild and Bone For and has sincerely apologised for his involvement, with no hard feelings left between him and Bone For. Sixmorphugus later apologised to Bone For on behalf of the dev team a year later. Toriel never apologised for her part, continuing to claim to be the victim, as confirmed by her messages to Bone following the situation.

Are you sure you want to open a ticket to moderators?

Modmail is only for Brickadia moderator inquiries. It is not for learning how to play, reporting bugs, or similar issues. Ask these questions in the appropriate channels such as Brickadiatechnical-help, Brickadiagameplay-help, or Brickadiabug-reports. Tickets that only contain hi, hello, or a similar greeting will be closed as spam. Please explain your inquiry in the first message as much as possible.

Open Alpha registrations are closed as we focus all efforts on the Early Access release. You can wishlist it here to be notified immediately when it's available!

Your original message will be forwarded to the moderators.

Moderator Response

Hi, what's up?

Dingo Ananas — 18/04/2023 10:36

Hi, who am i talking to? i am supposed to have a discussion with Six

Dingo Ananas — 18/04/2023 22:18

i have an issue and this stuff is a private matter and i will not discuss it with unknown people, i want to know who i talk to, it doesnt concern moderators, you could at least answer that, thanks you.

BrickBot

Moderator Response

There is no possibility of a resolution if you're not willing to talk to the entire team. You may either tell all of us what you would like to say, or remain as-is.

Dingo Ananas — 18/04/2023 23:49

But this is unfair. You demand to include people who are essentially outsiders in a private matter between the devs and i. This isn't a brickadia issue in itself, but a personal issue between specific individuals. you wouldn't invite your friend over to listen when you want to have a chat with your wife about your relationship -type deal. I have the feeling you devs don't really want to truly discuss this with me. You should understand that bringing unknown/not related people from outside the devs make me feel, i believe if you truly don't realise that you haven't really understood the issue u offered to discuss, it won't lead anywhere.

it is fair that i want to discuss a matter that is strictly between the devs and i, with the devs only and it is not fair that u want to discuss the same matter but bringing people outside devs team my conditions are fair and anyone who's got common sense should realise the issue of bringing "outsiders" to a private discussion why not inviting neighbour larry to ur private relationship therapy session think at that point any reasonable person would just cancel the session sadly.

Moderator Response

The moderation team is part of the brickadia project, they are not outsiders. If you want to talk to the developers, you will talk to the moderators too. As a clarification, when Sixmorphugus sent you to modmail it was because the intent was to have you speak with the entire team.

Dingo Ananas — 19/04/2023 00:42

Since Rothary was helping in this matter trying to help fixing the relation between the devs and i, and because he is the one that talked to Six about this whole issue, he said me to send you his regards and also this: Judging by the response directly quoted by Sylvanor to me, I can conclude the devs are missing the entire point of what I talked to six about and why I even brought it up in the first place. Had I know this is how they view it, completely failing to realize the whole point I tried to make by contacting six, I would've never bothered to bring it up in the first place, because it's a lost cause due to the devs' unwillingness to act fair about it after Sylvanor through great effort agreed to open up about it and approach the devs himself. I can now see the issue is caused more by the devs than Sylvanor and I give up on trying to fix the relationship between the two, if even after Sylvanor agrees take the leap, the devs insist on changing the issue to something else.

Rothary:

This was me making a genuine attempt at fixing a sour relationship between the devs and my friend

And I'm sorry I couldn't do it

I've no part in this issue and I've done my best to try to make both sides understand the causes of it the reason I even wanted to contact six about this is because I feel bad and sorry about the sour relationship and did my best to fix it because it's slowly veering towards yet another friend of mine leaving brickadia

Annex 3: The devs“Public statement” (but in QA only, not that of a public one isnt it?)

We've given Dingo chances time and time again but he has demonstrated that he isn't fit for QA after talking offensively about specific developers and moderators in private Brickadia servers, intentionally deadnaming and insulting trans members of the community, and being part of the conversations spreading ill-will about the development and moderation teams. He continues to this day to utilize his server's name and description to vaguely insult, harass, and poke fun of certain moderators as well as community members. We have deliberately allowed him to do, despite his claims that we "unfairly moderate" his group. We've given him plenty.

We allowed him one more time to contact us privately about the situation so we could come to a mutual agreement and maybe allow him back into the team. He immediately demonstrated that he is not willing to come to an agreement by accusing us of 'allowing unrelated parties to join the conversation' which is strange considering the entire purpose of that was so he could make amends with the whole team. Dingo decided to leave the community on his own accord upon hearing this, we have not instructed him to do so.

Simply put: Dingo is not QA material. We do not have faith that he will obey the NDA properly, given his utter refusal to respect the entire Brickadia team and repeated attempts to slander their reputation as well as the community. This is the only public statement we will be making about this situation, if only to set the story straight as it seems to be getting spun quite hard without us addressing this.

Annex 4: The Aware discussion (since he likes chat logs so much)

:yellow_circle: Aware: this document is wild

:yellow_circle: Aware: i finally finished it

:ant2: Rothary: nic

:yellow_circle: Aware: what i find most amusing about it is how this is more of a complaint about the developers when really it is a complaint against me lol

:ant2: Rothary: how so

:yellow_circle: Aware: i advocated for almost every complaint here

:ant2: Rothary: smh

:yellow_circle: Aware: even facechild getting banned

:yellow_circle: Aware: i advocated to ban a friend for a few weeks lol

:ant2: Rothary: mm

:yellow_circle: Aware: frankly, what happened deserved a ban and facechild even agreed at the time

:ant2: Rothary: the main complaint in my part anyway is not about anything that happened to facechild

:yellow_circle: Aware: he joked about sea being a pedo and some people from his server took it seriously and ended up sending sea death threats

:ant2: Rothary: its about how the devs responded to my sincere attempt at fixing a relationship

:yellow_circle: Aware: so while he didn't directly send sea death threats, he did cause it

:ant2: Rothary: i assume the ppl sending the death threats got banned as well

:yellow_circle: Aware: even the fact that you guys convinced the devs to kick tori off the team

:yellow_circle: Aware: i was the first to advocate to add her back as a full mod

:ant2: Rothary: bruh

:ant2: Rothary: genuine curious question, why was that

:yellow_circle: Aware: it's like reading all my decisions from the other perspective

:door: explicit has left the game

:yellow_circle: Aware: when you guys convinced the devs to remove toriel i felt (and still do) that the reason for removal was unfairly represented

:ant2: Rothary: ic

:ant2: Rothary: we didn't really

:ant2: Rothary: ask the devs to remove toriel per say

:ant2: Rothary: that was six personally deciding that

:ant2: Rothary: based on what we had told about the titanic drama

:yellow_circle: Aware: still, they made the decision based wholly on what you guys said

:ant2: Rothary: it was mostly bones who was hoping theyd remove her

:ant2: Rothary: and six was talking directly to bones about it

:yellow_circle: Aware: still, they made the decision based wholly on what you guys said

:ant2: Rothary: it was mostly bones who was hoping theyd remove her

:ant2: Rothary: and six was talking directly to bones about it

:ant2: Rothary: informing him about the decision

:yellow_circle: Aware: well i don't really like bones

:ant2: Rothary: our talk with the devs was more like

:yellow_circle: Aware: especially after he went around saying how much better toriel was before she was trans

:ant2: Rothary: well it wasnt a "wow i never knew about dis stuff" and more a "wow so the ppl who brought all this up back then actually werent making it up???"

:yellow_circle: Aware: i dunno why you expect toriel to give bones an apology for that

:yellow_circle: Aware: the sea chameleon not getting banned part was mostly because i thought they would actually listen to conf but they just got worse

:ant2: Rothary: well bones at least based on what he has told me mostly had a problem with toriel with how she kept for example replacing the american flag on the titanic with a trans one

:yellow_circle: Aware: so the fuckup was that i didn't convince everyone to ban sea hard enough lol

:ant2: Rothary: and her repeated sexual lewd jokes in the server

:yellow_circle: Aware: yeah, that was when sea was around who influenced her poorly

:ant2: Rothary: i feel like toriel accusing bones of transphobia is toriel misunderstanding what it is that bones actually was upset about regarding her

:ant2: Rothary: cos im p sure bones couldnt care less if someone is trans or not considering recently he & his wife went around visiting museums with Luumia irl

:ant2: Rothary: cos good friends

:yellow_circle: Aware: i literally read a conversation about him complaining about toriel's transition changing her for the worse

:ant2: Rothary: yes and ive heard as much from bones, it completely changed how she acts is what he has said

:ant2: Rothary: which is as much as ive seen myself as well

:yellow_circle: Aware: so is it that hard to believe that toriel doesn't want to appologize to bones when bones doesn't like who she is as a person

:ant2: Rothary: well nobody is rly expecting her to apologize over things related to that exactly

:ant2: Rothary: but neither is any of this something toriel brought up to bones in her messages to him about all the issues

:ant2: Rothary: so as far as toriel has been concerned at least back then regarding the issue at hand, she hasn't considered this stuff to be part of it, or at least didn't admit as much to bones directly

:ant2: Rothary: i've seen the chats between toriel n bones following the titanic thing, as shared both by bones and sixmoprhugus

:ant2: Rothary: six p much telling toriel that you said p much the worst things you could've said in ur statement to bones, congrats

:ant2: Rothary: i've also had toriel explain her side of things in detail to me personally without interruptions

:yellow_circle: Aware: well from my perspective she doesn't owe bones an apology so i don't care if the apology wasn't great

:ant2: Rothary: even in that case she never brought up any of transphobia related things

:ant2: Rothary: didn't even remotely reference such

:ant2: Rothary: well from my perspective none of this removes any of the stuff she did do

:ant2: Rothary: if anything both owe an apology to each other

:yellow_circle: Aware: well she wouldn't need to apologize for bones' comments

:ant2: Rothary: and there was no apology to begin with

:ant2: Rothary: with*

:ant2: Rothary: i never said she would need to apologize for bones' comments

:ant2: Rothary: those are something bones would have to apologize for if anyone, obviously

:ant2: Rothary: but those also have nothing to do with the situation at hand at least according to bones and toriel at the time and for the months afterwards

:ant2: Rothary: even a year later toriel explaining her side of things to me she didn't mention any of that stuff

:ant2: Rothary: so i haven't exactly considered it part of it or relevant to the issue

:ant2: Rothary: cos toriel herself didn't

:yellow_circle: Aware: well i just don't get what apology you are hoping for

:ant2: Rothary: do you know what the issue even was

:yellow_circle: Aware: maybe not?

:yellow_circle: Aware: driving bones away from brickadia?

:ant2: Rothary: bones left brickadia due to toriel's behaviour towards facechild on the server (and due to APX who was a main contributor to the titanic project, helping toriel with that)

:ant2: Rothary: bones had the two make a deal

:ant2: Rothary: that as long as both are on the server, facechild will not shitpost (which was the main thing toriel complained about at the time) and toriel will not attack face

:ant2: Rothary: toriel had repeatedly at this point asked bones to plllleeease end his friendship with facechild cos fuck that guy

:ant2: Rothary: after a week toriel failed her part of the deal and lashed out at facechild

:ant2: Rothary: bones packed his things and fuck off from the game

:ant2: Rothary: later there was the whole deal with titanic

:yellow_circle: Aware: iirc this was around the time facechild's friends send death threats to sea

:ant2: Rothary: toriel arguing its not bones' project but the titanic team's project, despite being 95% built by bones

:ant2: Rothary: toriel arguing she gets a say over who can continue the project, not bones

:ant2: Rothary: bones having requested nobody continue it cos its his project

:ant2: Rothary: but overall it was toriel's hostility towards bones and face (justified or not) and other members of the titanic team joining in on it that made bones decide hes unable to continue the project anymore, leaving the game

:ant2: Rothary: APX has since then deeply apologized to bones

:ant2: Rothary: n theyre in good relations

:ant2: Rothary: toriel continues to argue shes the victim cos ppl in the titanic team eventually turned against her (over her claiming ownership of the project despite not having contributed to it etc)

:yellow_circle: Aware: apx wasn't really involved in the drama that much besides leaking some pictures

:ant2: Rothary: apx spied this server chat to dig up out of context dirt on face for sea & the gang to use

:ant2: Rothary: which is when bones ended the project

:ant2: Rothary: cos APX was one of the main contributors and an essential part of the titanic project

:ant2: Rothary: building almost the entirety of the forecastle

:ant2: Rothary: but yea the defences for toriel that youve presented here so far

:ant2: Rothary: were never presented by toriel herself

:yellow_circle: Aware: i mean moderators also spied this server's chat lol

:ant2: Rothary: hence it hasnt really affected the aftermath

:yellow_circle: Aware: not sure if you are aware of that

:ant2: Rothary: how did they spy the server's chat

:yellow_circle: Aware: the discord integration

:ant2: Rothary: ic ic

:earth_americas: Maxxuss has joined the game

:clock4: Maxxuss last joined 20/06/2022 02:21

:ant2: Rothary: ye dont think we've been aware of dat but that sounds questionable as well

:yellow_circle: Aware: so a lot of the things sylv has said was seen directly by moderators and devs

:yellow_circle: Aware: are you aware of that?

:ant2: Rothary: then the moderators and devs also know ive been defending em quite a bit

:ant2: Rothary: which then raises the question why didnt the devs know that until we brought it up to their attention

:ant2: Rothary: and they had to re-verify it
:yellow_circle: Aware: well the chat went private a while back
:ant2: Rothary: yeah like
:ant2: Rothary: a year later
:ant2: Rothary: but that just then kinda highlights the very issue of spying on private server chats
:ant2: Rothary: you see some of it but not all of it
:yellow_circle: Aware: well im just saying, some of the things sylvanor said on this server may have made the devs not want to relate to him
:ant2: Rothary: yeah absolutely theyve known as much even without spying
:ant2: Rothary: nobody is disputing that
:ant2: Rothary: we're very much admitting that
:ant2: Rothary: which was a big part of my whole chat with six
:ant2: Rothary: sylv is harsh with his words n doesnt shy away from talking shit
:ant2: Rothary: neither do i at times
:yellow_circle: Aware: it's not really private chat if it is indexed and searchable in the cohort discord or wahtever
:ant2: Rothary: a private discord server
:yellow_circle: Aware: the invite link is shared regularly by the announcement script
:ant2: Rothary: dis is true
:yellow_circle: Aware: well can you blame me for having a little peak?
:ant2: Rothary: but it still doesnt remove the fact that mods/devs have been spying on the chat
:yellow_circle: Aware: it was mostly me tbh
:ant2: Rothary: i do if its done for moderation purposes cos youre not gonna be getting accurate info with all context through it
:ant2: Rothary: and im frankly somewhat appalled that a mod would actually do that
:yellow_circle: Aware: well it helped me convince everyone that sylv was a 2 faced liar, and really a terrible person
:ant2: Rothary: exactly my point
:yellow_circle: Aware: although, i never saw any issues with you
:door: Maxxuss has left the game
:ant2: Rothary: yea so i dont know where the fuck the devs got that idea from
:ant2: Rothary: its what initially prompted me to kinda lose trust in the devs
:ant2: Rothary: cos its almost like theyre making up their own misconceptions about me and then making decisions based on them
:ant2: Rothary: despite me having been a good help to em in development
:yellow_circle: Aware: maybe they realized you were the kinda person to write an 18 page expose and don't know if they can trust you
:ant2: Rothary: contributing a lot to the game n having good relations with em
:ant2: Rothary: i wrote the essay as a result of them figuratively spitting in my face
:ant2: Rothary: and writing a smear piece about sylvanor
:yellow_circle: Aware: you kinda shot yourself in the foot to ever be taken seriously by them by siding with sylvanor and writing this

:ant2: Rothary: so you once again are saying the devs have never done anything wrong or what

:ant2: Rothary: do you not understand why i wrote this thing

:yellow_circle: Aware: well, i'm saying most of the things you complain about are caused by me directly

:ant2: Rothary: i didnt have a foot to shoot at

:ant2: Rothary: when i was writing it

:yellow_circle: Aware: maybe now that im not a mod you wont have any issues lol

:ant2: Rothary: it was already gone

:ant2: Rothary: well idk

:ant2: Rothary: these are all issues we've brought up to the devs directly

:ant2: Rothary: regardless whether or not youre involved theyve fully stood behind em

:ant2: Rothary: my main complaint

:ant2: Rothary: and the reason why i wrote the whole thing in the 1st place

:yellow_circle: Aware: probably

:ant2: Rothary: is once again

:ant2: Rothary: the dev response to me approaching them about fixing the relationship between the devs and sylvanor

:ant2: Rothary: i didnt have major issues with devs prior to that

:ant2: Rothary: they had literally invited me to QA the day before

:ant2: Rothary: i didnt shoot myself in the foot by writing the thing

:yellow_circle: Aware: ya you did

:ant2: Rothary: the devs had already blown my whole leg off which is why i wrote it

:ant2: Rothary: my writing it didnt change anything

:ant2: Rothary: sht was already what it is

:yellow_circle: Aware: i think your relationship was salvagable

:yellow_circle: Aware: but your ties to sylv are the problem

:ant2: Rothary: all i can say youve no idea what happened

:ant2: Rothary: its a problem that i approch the devs about wanting to fix a relationship?

:yellow_circle: Aware: well you don't provide the chat logs so maybe i don't know everything

:ant2: Rothary: how are you so consistently incapable of seeing any fault in the devs boggles my mind

:ant2: Rothary: we've plenty of faults

:ant2: Rothary: but so do the devs

:yellow_circle: Aware: i'm not saying they don't have faults

:yellow_circle: Aware: i'm just saying, not wanting to associate with sylv is entirely reasonable

:ant2: Rothary: you defend the devs more tenaciously than the devs themselves have in my chats with them

:yellow_circle: Aware: i'm surprised the chief hat or whatever isn't in this doc tbh

:ant2: Rothary: well to me it just sounds a lot like you once again lack all the context of what has happened between sylvanor and the devs throughout the years

:ant2: Rothary: and why i believed a chat with the devs could potentially help fix things

:ant2: Rothary: most of it is misunderstandings

:yellow_circle: Aware: i know he's begged to join the mod and dev team several times lol

:ant2: Rothary: yes thats again one side of the thing

:ant2: Rothary: and only some examples

:yellow_circle: Aware: i remember he very tastefully asked to join the team right after evar got booted

:ant2: Rothary: im not aware of him having begged to join the dev team but i know his boyfriend had been considered

:yellow_circle: Aware: so clearly he doesn't have any issues with the pedo allegations

:ant2: Rothary: well i mean he did back then

:yellow_circle: Aware: oh yeah, he also asked for his boyfriend to join

:ant2: Rothary: perhaps not in his application to the devs

:ant2: Rothary: but he wasnt exactly quiet about that stuff back den

:yellow_circle: Aware: but he boyfriend has 0 unreal engine experience and was just expecting to learn after joingin

:ant2: Rothary: again, u dont know whats been going on

:yellow_circle: Aware: honestly, i think it is you who doesn't know what is going on

:ant2: Rothary: yeah which his boyfriend took as the devs misunderstanding his area of expertese

:ant2: Rothary: and why he instead went to work at cd project red

:yellow_circle: Aware: the devs were very trasparent with moderators

:yellow_circle: Aware: even in your document they wanted to involve them in the conversations with sylv

:ant2: Rothary: afk food ucankeeptalkingireadwhenigetback

:yellow_circle: Aware: well

:yellow_circle: Aware: i'mma hop off

:yellow_circle: Aware: but i think the devs do you like you

:yellow_circle: Aware: it's just sylvanor who is the problem

:yellow_circle: Aware: and i think your views might be skewed because of your friendship with him

:door: Aware has left the game

Khaz: and they are jumping to insane conclusions?

Aware: the 2nd paragraph

Aware: As to why I speak on Dingo's behalf at several parts in this document, this is Dingo's wish as he's not confident enough with his fluency in English to trust himself in converting his thoughts into English sentences

Dingo Ananas: and more ppl he didnt need to cite

Khaz: So from that 2nd paragraph you thought literally every single problem that ant brought up he was speaking for sylvanor

Khaz: Got it

Khaz: this is kind of a problem they have because they feel like nobody is taking this seriously or putting in enough effort when really they should be

Khaz: and that is shown by your takeaway of the essay rn

Khaz: they are harsh words because this is a ridiculous fucking situation

Khaz: period

Khaz: thats just my two cents as someone who was invited to brickadia by ANT and dingo and have seen their relations with the dev team over the years

Aware: do you have access to their discord ingame server chat?

Khaz: i dont like seeing it fall apart due to this shit something which could have been easily avoided

Khaz: no i dont

Aware: dang

Aware: i don't think brickadia will fall apart because of this or anything

Saving 2,586,747 bricks...

Khaz: oh i should have worded that differently

Khaz: there's def that as a concern but less so

Khaz: but 'It' was referring to the relationship between the parties

Aware: that relationship was ruined years ago

Khaz: i know that

Khaz: but that's where ANT comes in and tries his best to remedy it as respectfully as possible

Hoogle: not sure if this is relevant but I'd advise people not to assume who likes or dislikes people

Hoogle: or what 'team' people are on

Aware: i wasn't part of the team at that point so i can't really speak on it

Hoogle: id advise against this type of thinkin

Khaz: ^

Aware: if i had to guess he said things that the team knows are obvious lies

Hoogle: I suppose because I work on terrain at the city people who dont get on with dingo may assume things about me

Hoogle: i dont mind, I get that

Hoogle: but people who dont know me, dont know me

Aware: because like i said, the chat messages on his server were publicly viewable

Hoogle: yeah, on that point I told roth that "spying" which he used was the wrong word

Hoogle: i corrected it to

Hoogle: "reading" lol

Hoogle: it was public, i dont believe "spying" is correct at all

Aware: i wouldn't say it's not spying

Hoogle: extremely plausible I forgot or didnt see D: i did post physical pigs falling down a mountain Ohara: Wait, why leaking stuff about the QA so important, what's in the QA exactly?
Hoogle: nuclear weaposn
Dingo Ananas: 2 things

Dingo Ananas: no shit was leaked
Dingo Ananas: 2
Dingo Ananas: the essay isnt qbout qa
Ohara: I mean, I'm following this game quite well since 2021, and i couldn't get any leaked info about QA
Hoogle: I posted in screenies at the time, along with many others, never got a message about it, this was some time ago now
Aware: is the essay not about why you complain about the devs not liking/trusting you
Khaz: sigh
Aware: why you might not be liked: you insulted them in private Dingo Ananas: it is all about that and why Imfao
Aware: why you might not be trusted: you leaked info

Dingo Ananas: ask ant about that he knows more

Aware: what would be more subjective of a reason to not invite someone who has demonstrated they leak info

Aware: and even now misrepresent the info

Dingo Ananas: u still didnt tell me what i did leak

Ohara: Inviting people to the QA shoudIN't be judge by objective thinking? I mean, okay, they shittalk of someone, but they actually care about the game, could improve on it.

Dingo Ananas: u should know since u read the chat at that time

Dingo Ananas: again it was resolved talking to the devs

Ohara: I mean, gossiping is allowed
Dingo Ananas: was maybe in 2016 or 2017 lol

Dingo Ananas: ye i cant give my opinion on stuff
Dingo Ananas: or it might displease the gods
Juju: they were upset about complaint regarding a removed cosmetic?
Juju: wat
Khaz: i think thats an oversimplification
Dingo Ananas: i was basically because they removed it for the wrong reasons (in my opinion)
Dingo Ananas: and i talked bout that wit people

Juju: a chef hat, or chief hat
Khaz: chief
Dingo Ananas: chief
Khaz: native american/indigenous Juju: bruh what you can do
Ohara: Oh, wait, they really removed it? :c
Dingo Ananas: but ye this thing isnt related to the current essay
Juju: why was it even brought up
Dingo Ananas: its an old drama that was closed by the devs and i
Aware: bruh
Dingo Ananas: because he likes to shit on me for anything even stuff he doesnt understand
Hoogle: yeah it was removed ohara
Aware: the essay was written because dingo and the dev's relationship soured
Hoogle: other cultural headwear still exists in the game so it seems the reasoning is specific to cheif hat
Hoogle: i dont know much about it tho
Dingo Ananas: ye but the cheif hat thing isnt related to that Ohara: :c because cultural appropriation or what? xd
Dingo Ananas: it was before
Hoogle: I assume so
Dingo Ananas: ye basically that Ohara: xdddd muricans

Juju: they're a double edged sword, sometimes abusive employers tend to weaponize nda's astr — 31/07/2023 18:46

yeah

Ohara: I just, love seeing the world burn

astr — 31/07/2023 18:46

justified to an extent I should say

Saturn — 31/07/2023 18:46

true

they can definitely be abused

Ohara: What if an outsider somehow gets confidential information, who hasn't signed an NDA, and then leaks it?
